WHAT: The American Constitution Society for Law and Policy (ACS) will host an event exploring the late Supreme Court Justice Louis Brandeis's substantial influence on constitutional jurisprudence surrounding privacy rights. As a member of the high court, Brandeis advanced the constitutional protections of privacy that remain influential today. A panel of diverse experts, including Melvin I. Urofsky, author of the recent Louis D. Brandeis: A Life, will discuss Brandeis's influence and the state of privacy law.

WHO:

- Moderator, William P. Marshall, Visiting Professor of Law, George Washington University Law School; William Rand Kenan Jr. Distinguished Professor of Law, UNC Chapel Hill School of Law.
- Melvin I. Urofsky, author, Louis D. Brandeis: A Life; Professor of Law and Public Policy and Professor Emeritus of History, Virginia Commonwealth University.
- Anita L. Allen, Deputy Dean and Henry R. Silverman Professor of Law and Professor of Philosophy, University of Pennsylvania Law Schools.
- Ken Gormley, Interim Dean, Duquesne University Law School.

WHEN: Nov. 10, 2009, Light refreshments will be served at 5:30 p.m., followed by the panel discussion from 6 p.m. – 7:15 p.m.

WHERE: 1333 H Street NW, 10th Floor, CAP conference room, Washington, DC 20005

RSVP: The event is free. Please RSVP to press@acslaw.org.
