

The American Constitution Society for Law and Policy (ACS) is the nation's leading progressive legal organization, with approximately 200 student and lawyer chapters in almost every state and on most law school campuses. Our chapters hold over 1,400 public programs across the country each year, including debates, conferences, press briefings and networking opportunities. ACS works for positive change by shaping debates in classrooms, courtrooms, legislature and the media. ACS has built a national network of progressive law students, lawyers, judges, policy experts, legislators and academics committed to justice. ACS also works to cultivate the next generation of progressive leaders. We use our extensive national network to assist our members with career development, mentorship and job assistance. Our members get access to job banks, special conference calls, and the opportunity to network with progressive leaders throughout the country.

Please reach out to campus@acslaw.org for more information on ACS.

